Here are the years that walk between, bearing
Away the fiddles and the flutes, restoring
One who moves in the time between sleep and waking.
This is the time of tension between dying and birth
The place of solitude and of the new season.
Spring has come in winter. Snow in the branches
Shall float as sweet as blossoms. Ice along the ditches
Mirror the sunlight. Love in the orchard
Send the sap shooting.

But there will be time, there will be time,
Time for all the works and days of hands
That lift and drop a question on your plate.
When the Stranger says: "What is the meaning of this city?"
What will you answer? "We all dwell together
To make money from each other"? or "This is a community"?
And the Stranger will depart and return to the desert.
O my soul, be prepared for the coming of the Stranger,
Be prepared for him who knows how to ask questions.
You shall not deny the Stranger.

And that is the worst moment, when you feel that you have lost
The desire for all that was most desirable,
And you go on wishing that you could desire
What desire has left behind. But you cannot understand.
We must always take risks.
That is our destiny.
All we could do was give them the chance.
And now, when they are stripped naked to their souls
And can choose, whether to put on proper costumes
Or huddle quickly into new disguises,
They have, for the first time, somewhere to start from.

And I rejoice that things are as they are and
Because I cannot hope to turn again
Let these words answer
For what is done, not to be done again.
